

Daugherty House, 508 S. Broadway

Cape Cod/California Bungalow, 1950

This charming beach cottage has recently been redecorated in a crisp yellow, white and blue palette. The owner is an antiques dealer and has furnished the home beautifully, with antiques collected from the Midwest and back East. The wood floors are original to the house and recently have been sanded and refinished. The wood floors in the kitchen were added and blend beautifully with the existing wood. Crown moldings and 6" baseboards were added throughout the home. The contractor converted an existing three-recessed-panel door into a pocket door, and the owner added two additional new pocket doors. The home features new kitchen cabinetry painted in a Williamsburg blue. The remodeled spaces are an excellent backdrop for the owners various antiques. The home features several paintings done by friends or family members over the years, including a beautiful painting of the home and front yard. With two bedrooms, one bath, an attic, and a basement, this home is an excellent example of the original beach cottages that are a part of Redondo's colorful history.
